Trevor practices with the firm's Litigation group, representing clients in state and federal court in employment discrimination, personal injury, product liability, and commercial matters. In addition to his civil practice, Trevor also defends individuals charged with criminal offenses.

Before joining Norman, Hanson & DeTroy, Trevor served as a law clerk to Justice Joseph M. Jabar of the Maine Supreme Judicial Court. He graduated from the University of Maine School of Law, where he served as Managing Editor of the Maine Law Review and as a legal writing teaching assistant for first-year students. During law school, Trevor competed nationally as a member of the Maine Law Moot Court Team and worked as a Student Attorney at the Cumberland County District Attorney's Office. He also interned at the United States Attorney's Office and with Judge Kermit V. Lipez of the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit.

Prior to beginning his legal career, Trevor received a degree in Broadcast Journalism from Emerson College and worked in television. He and his wife, Amy, live in North Berwick with their two boys.
